The resolution was then adopted by a vote of 173 to 126. When the cheering over the result had subsided Mr. Lieber said that the Catholies adhered to the course they had hitherto fol-lowed and that they would remain faithful to the em serer and to the empire and loyalty devoted to the

A CURIOUS COMBINATION. Personnel of the Union Pacific Reor-

Brice, chairman of the reorganization committee, is also chairman of the senate committee on Pacific railroads. He was given the senate position in recognition of his brilliant railroad career, but his acceptance of th chairmanship of the reorganization committee has caused considerable surprise and much comment. J. B. Reilly of Pennsylvania, chairman of the house committee on Pa-cific railroads, is also a member of the reorganization committee. This means that there is a combination of government control, personal interest and cor orate selection on the committee which is somewhat startling to those who have followed the kis-tory of subsidized railroads. The chairmen of the respect ve committees of the house and senate on Pacific railroads would seem to have a direct interest in the reorganization of the road, but the interests of the public and the interest of the corporations have been for years opposed to each other. Several of the hairmen of the house committee on Pacific railroads have graduated into attorneys for the

On the contrary, tribal wars and wars with the whites having ceased, they are increasing and there are now over 250,000. Much good is being accomplished by allotments in

Under the existing law the appropriations intended for the support of those Indians will be consumed by the payment of these claim, and a second appropriation would be necessary to meet their needs, so the payment of these claims will eventually devolve upon the government. It is estimated that these claims will absorb many millions of dollars, and the policy of subjecting the treasury to this strain is ques-

The labor of estimating the revenue that would be derived under the new tariff

Of course this estimate is on the supposition that imports under the new bill would be no greater than under the present law, a supposition which the Democrats by no means concede. It is the conclusion of thairman Wilson and his Democratic associates that importations will be so stimulated under the new bill that the loss of revenue, despite the radiout reduction of duties, will not be over $15,000,000. This deficit it is now proposed to make up by a tax on the neomes of corporations, a tax on suc-cessions and playing cards, and by increasing the tax on eigarettes, and perhaps whisky.

Mr. Tarsney of the ways and means committee, still clings to the belief that the deficit cannot be supplied without extending the income tax to

THE SENATE RULES.

PROPOSED ANTI-FILIBUSTER ING AMENDMENTS.

DISCUSSION EXPECTED

The Subject Will Be Taken in Hand at an Early Day After the Meeting of Congress-Closure of Debate and Counting of a Quorum Seems the Probable Solution of the Difficulty.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.- The delay in the passage of the silver repeal bill had the effect, incidental to most confliets of great length in the senate, of arousing a number of senators to the importance of a change which should place in the hands of the senate the power to bring any issue to a close at a definite time and to make the majority the judge of the proper limitation of debate upon any subject.

Senator Blackburn, chairman of the committee on rules, became so impressed with the importance of a reform of this character that towards the close of the extra session be asked authority, which was granted, for his committee to sit for the pur pose of considering the question with the view of suggesting a course of action to the senate. The committee has held no meetings during the re-cess, but the subject will be taken in hand at an early date after the convening of congress, as Mr. Blackburn has announced his intention of urging

The committee will find abundant material to work upon when it meets. as there are before it no fewer than nine amendments looking to the accomplishment of the end in view. Of these Mr. Hill is the author of four, Mr. Platt of two and Messrs. Voor bees, Hoar and Manderson of one each. A majority of the resolutions provide for the closure of debate and the others look to the determination

Mr. Hill displayed greater interest in the matter during the extra session than others, and he and Mr. Voorhees united upon the form of an amendment for closure, providing that a majority of senators could demand a vote upon any bill which had been under debate in the senate for thirty days. Others of his proposed amendments look to the maintainence of a quorum - one by authorizing the presiding officer to count senators present who refuse to respond tosa roll call to determine the presence of a quorum and another by authorizing the counting of sonators paired and present on a vote for the purpose of making a quorum and seeking to prevent recourse to another method of delay by prohibiting sen-ators from raising a question of lack of a quorum while another senator speaking, and by also providing that the question of the want of a quorum should not under any circumstances be raised oftener than once an hour Mr. Manderson's amendment is simply an amendment to Mr. Hill's proosed amendment concerning pairs.

The amendments of Messrs. Platt and Hoar look to the closing of debate but differ in time and method from Mr. Hill's suggestion in the same di-Mr. Platt's amendment pro vides that upon a written request of a majority of senators at any stage of the debate upon any bill the vice pres ident shall fix a date for the close of debate five days afterward and Mr. Hoar's that, after a bill shall have been under consideration for one day, any senator may demand the close and if he is seconded by a majority of the senate, the debate is to discontinue forthwith and the vote be taken after each senator shall have had an opportunity to speak once not to exceed an

It is presumed that if any changes should be recommended by the committee on rules they would be on the lines indicated by these proposed amendments, as they cover about all the ground. With power to count a quorum and to prevent the continued recalling of the roll, the vice president would be in a position to expedite the consideration of any measure, and and bullion, is $13,122,128; the gold with the additional authority and bullion is $13,122,128; the gold with the additional authority the day of voting upon any given the gold ertificates in circumeasure, there would probably be no measure, there would probably be no in that body.

Those opposed to the changes argue that the complaint would be from the opposite direction and that the country would soon come to have cause to apprehend more serious consequences from hasty legislation than it now has from tardy action.

If the question be laid before the senate the country may expect to see one of the most animated debates ever witnessed in that body. The subject has been frequently before the senate and never fails to arouse the strongest antagonism and many personal allu-sions and heated word encounters. It has been so from 1827 when, during the Twenty-seventh congress Henry Clay and Thomas H Benton locked horns over a threat of closure made by Clay when Benton denonneed the scheme as an effort at gag law. new men appear to be utterly unable question also came up in the Thirty-to run the trains with any degree of first.
